

Rivertown Neighborhood project

April 12, 2013

Regina H. Boone/Detroit Free Press

Lorain Alston, 60, left, and Tempie Cason, 78, exercise inside the rehabilitation area of Rivertown Assisted facility at 250 McDougall St. in Detroit. It is a combination of independent living, assisted living, a clinic, a day center, and skilled nursing care. The project known as Rivertown Neighborhood, is carved out of old and long-vacant Parke-Davis pharmaceutical research and production buildings.

<http://www.freep.com/apps/pbcs.dll/gallery?Avis=C4&Dato=20130412&Kategori=BUSINESS&Lopenr=304120805&Ref=PH&odyssey=mod%7Cgalleriespic>